

Entree Gold | EGI | Summary | Profile

Entrée Gold (EGI) is a Canadian mineral exploration company focused on the worldwide discovery and development of copper and gold prospects. The Company has significant interests in three key copper porphyry deposits: the Hugo North Extension and the Heruga deposits in Mongolia, and the Ann Mason deposit, located near Yerington, Nevada.

The Lookout Hill property in Mongolia completely surrounds the Oyu Tolgoi mining, a subsidiary of Ivanhoe Mines and the Government of Mongolia.

The Company is also exploring for porphyry-related copper systems in Nevada and New Mexico. The primary North American asset is the Ann Mason Project, located near Yerington, Nevada.

The Yerington copper camp has seen significant historic copper production along with a resurgence of exploration activity and now hosts over 20 billion pounds of copper in several deposits owned by a diverse group of companies.
