

WAR is Faster Less costly than QE2

Written by staff

Tuesday, 23 November 2010 21:37 - Last Updated Wednesday, 24 November 2010 17:39

It looks like 'baby Kim' , the youngest son of Kim Jong-II, trying to impress his Daddy with little fireworks. He has been appointed and introduced to the world, not too long ago, as the heir to the Kim Dynasty.

BBC reported that the South Korean president and his cabinet met in an 'undisclosed,underground', bomb proof shelter – now wait a minute, the 'undisclosed location' part has a familiar ring to it - never mind, Its just our PTSD acting up.

The two little shells landing at a remote Island, to us, sounded more like some bored kid in the neighborhood lighting up some left over fireworks from the 4th of July. We know its nuisance and could be dangerous, but WAR! Gimme a break.

There is NO WAR, there WON'T be any WAR. UNLESS!

Unless of course if it is in the Best Interest of the Economy- lets face it QE2 didn't do well at the Box Office. So one has to be a real fool to start shooting for the sequel and hope to turn into a Christmas Black Buster. That is a little too much capital risk.

QE2 is slow and unpopular

War is Easy, you can see the results on the ground, pretty fast. What QE2 has failed to do WAR would do it, it would be a popular bipartisan affair, much faster and cheaper, you don't need to bail out no body, no ugly looking stimulus packages, who wants them for Christmas?

WAR is Faster Less costly than QE2

Written by staff

Tuesday, 23 November 2010 21:37 - Last Updated Wednesday, 24 November 2010 17:39

How could we justify

That's easy, just ask any Think Tank in Washington, worth their salt, they would not only concur but also produce a 760 page report to back it up.

Lets get started now, why wait?

OxB112310©

OxBridgeResearch.com