

Ready to cash-in your chips? states and gaming companies are!

Budget deficits are forcing many states to look for new revenue sources, gambling, though controversial, remains an important source – on-line gambling until recently was illegal - However, under the new rules states are now Free to operate and permit gaming companies to open up online gambling operation, this could be a huge new revenue source for the states.

States like New York and Nevada are planing to sell everything from lottery tickets to high stakes poker games on line. Big gaming companies are also gearing up, we think a small company, PTEK, could benefit from it.
